Dapitan City

Dapitan, officially the City of Dapitan is a component city in the province of Zamboanga del Norte, Philippines.

"Shrine City in the Philippines."

Dapitan City lies on the Northern tip of Zamboanga del Norte and northwestern coast of the island of Mindanao.

It is a double wedge-shaped mass of land bounded on the north by the Sulu Sea and link on the south by the Municipalities of Mutia and La Libertad, on the east by the Municipalities of Sibutad and Rizal, on the west by Dipolog City and the Municipalities of Polanco, Sibutad, La Libertad and Rizal, all of the province of Zamboanga del Norte.

He is placed under the management of Captain Ricardo Carnicero

Given the highest security to prevent escape

Over time, however, Carnicero becomes amused and impressed by Rizal's demeanor and they become friends.

He allows Rizal to roam freely around Dapitan with minimal supervision.

Rizal's Poetry in Dapitan

Mi Retiro ("My Retreat") is a poem that he wrote for his mother when they were in Dapitan

A Ricardo Carnicero ("To Ricardo Carnicero") is about his warden who later on became his friend.

El Canto del Viajero ("The Song of the Traveler") is a poem about his excitement in going to Cuba for him to serve as a military doctor.

Chapter Summary

Rizal is exiled in Dapitan because of his dissent to the Spanish government and the friars.

In Dapitan he meets his partner, Josephine Bracken, as well as his family members and new friends in the city because of his career as a doctor

Rizal's brilliance in Dapitan, makes the city extremely developed during his time, solidifying his position as our national hero.

Rizal's Arrest, Trial, and Execution

Life and Works of Rizal

Not in Cuba but in Manila

When in exile, Rizal was met by Dr. Pio Valenzuela

It is the time when secret plans for a national revolution is being made under the would-be Katipunan.

Rizal, contemplating on the severity of the situation, decides not to support the revolution for now because it is poorly planned and, for him, it seems to fail at that time.

Not in Cuba but in Manila

Being a medical man by heart, Rizal wrote to Gov. Gen. Ramon Blanco regarding his intention to go to Cuba to help the doctors in the ongoing Cuban revolution.

His request is granted so he left Dapitan the day after it is approved, going to Manila on board the steamer Espana.

Not in Cuba but in Manila

It is a teary goodbye for the people of Dapitan whom Rizal has served during his exile.

He leaves most of his possessions to his students and followers and promises to help them as much as he can when he reaches Cuba.

His guards and friar friends also bid him an emotional goodbye and wish him luck on his way to Cuba

Not in Cuba but in Manila

Upon arrival in Manila, he boards another boat now en route to Spain.

During the boat ride, the Philippine Revolution by the Katipunan prematurely breaks out (because of the betrayal of Teodoro Patino who told his sister about the revolution and the Katipunan, who then told her Mother Superior in the convent, and who told Bernardino Nozaleda, the Archbishop of Manila during that time).

Not in Cuba but in Manila

In Singapore, news breaks out about the said national revolution

The Rizal Trial

In accordance with the Spanish law, Rizal was asked to choose a military lawyer from a list that is given to him

He chose Lt. Luis Taviel de Andrade because Rizal knew a Taviel in Dapitan and assumed that they are related

The Rizal Trial: The Defense

Manifesto a Algunos Filipinos (Manifesto to Certain Filipinos)

Manifesto a Algunos Filipinos (Manifesto to Certain Filipinos)

The Rizal Trial

On December 26, 1896, he faces a formal trial.

The trial began at 8:10 in the morning.

When Fiscal Enrique de Alcocer reads the memorandum asking for Rizal's execution, applause is heard from the hall.

This event saddens his mother, who is present during his son's trial

The Rizal Trial

Lt. Andrade spoke his defense but nobody really listens to it.

He gives defense in the name of Rizal by saying that he does nothing illegal and he is a very cooperative man during his exile in Dapitan.

Despite all of these, the death sentence remains unmovable. Rizal is deemed guilty by the court.

The Rizal Trial

Governor General Camilo de Polavieja agreed on the decision of the court and signed the death sentence on the grounds of sedition, rebellion, and institution of rebellious organizations.

The day of execution written on the document is December 30, 1896.

Rizal's Final Moments

Rizal was kept in Fort Santiago the entire time of his trial until his execution

On December 29, 1896, various priests (mostly Jesuits from the Ateneo) had visited Rizal convincing him to seek for forgiveness for what he had done. Although he respects the priests and the holy men, he did not follow their advice.

He also wrote letters to his family members and closest friends like Dr. Ferdinand Blumentritt and his lawyer, Lt. Andrade

The Rizal Trial

By 4:00 in the afternoon, Rizal is visited by his family members and he gives them his possessions, including a small gas stove hiding a small paper with his last poem.

He gives it to Trinidad and told her "There is something inside" in English so that it will not be understood by his guards.

Rizal's Final Moments

He spends the night conversing with priests about the flaws and development of the Catholic Church and contemplating on his life afterwards

He also confesses his sins to Fr. Jose Villalara, one of his professors in Ateneo, and takes communion in his jail cell. His partner in Dapitan, Josephine Bracken, also visits him.

Rizal's Final Moments

On the day of his execution on December 30, 1896, Rizal goes out of his cell by 6:15 in the morning. He is tasked to walk from Fort Santiago to Bagumbayan (now Luneta), his execution site.

On his walk, he sees the Ateneo and he fondly remembers his days there as a student

Rizal's Final Moments

Rizal is also blessed by the Jesuit priests upon passing them in the Ateneo. He shakes their hands as they cry because of the verdict. Rizal also sees his lawyer, Lt. Andrade, who is also very saddened by the decision of the court.

Nonetheless, Rizal reassures them that everything is all right and thank them for all their assistance to him.

Rizal's Final Moments

Upon arrival in Bagumbayan, he asks the guards if he can be gunned down while facing them. They do not agree because Rizal is seen as a traitor and therefore, he must be shot on his back.

Before the execution, Dr. Felipe Ruiz checks Rizal's pulse and vital signs. He is surprised that Rizal's heartbeat was normal—meaning that he is calm in what is about to happen.

Rizal's Final Moments

Rizal turns his back to the shooters consisting of Filipino soldiers in the first line who would shoot him and Spanish soldiers behind them, promising to shoot the Filipinos if they hesitate in killing Rizal.

Before the shot is fired, Rizal shouted "Consummatus Est!" which means "It is done"

Rizal's Final Moments

Upon the signal, a shot is fired. Rizal tried to face the crowd after being shot, which led him to fall on his back. He stares at the sky, his breathing labored, waiting for death to arrive.

When the Spanish guards noticed that he is still breathing, one of them goes to Rizal and shot him again in the heart—a mercy shot.

Rizal's Final Moments

Jose Rizal passed away on 7:03 in the morning of December 30, 1896.

4. 2. The World in the 19th Century

The World in the 19th Century

Life and Works of Rizal

Asst. Prof. Franz Jude Abelgas

Outline of Discussion

19th Century World

19th Century Philippines (Spanish Colonization)

19th Century World

Colonial Dominance in the Orient: 19th Century Asia

Opium Wars between the British and the Chinese were fought due to problems in Chinese trade and international relations.

This led to the British gain of more power due to the defeat of China in the two wars. This also led to the Treaties of Nanjing and Tianjin which gave China a disadvantage over their British colonizers.

Hong Kong was ceded to the British and ports were forcibly opened to accommodate more foreign products in the country.

Colonial Dominance in the Orient: 19th Century Asia

Japan is also suffering defeat under Commodore Matthew Perry and his gunboat diplomacy tactic. This made Japan open up its borders albeit their policy of Sakoku (self-imposed isolation from world trade)

Colonial Dominance in the Orient: 19th Century Asia

In other parts of Asia, the French had colonized Cambodia and the Indo-China area. Burma bowed down to Great Britain following the Burmese Wars from 1824-1886. The British also acquired Malaysia while the Dutch had Indonesia in their reign.

Enlightenment and Wars: 19th Century Europe and America

In France, the monarchy crumbled and was overthrown by the force of the people through the very famous French Revolution

Napoleon Bonaparte started expanding the French empire across Asia and some parts of Europe

Enlightenment and Wars: 19th Century Europe and America

In America, slavery has been abolished by President Abraham Lincoln which resulted into the split of the country into pro-slavery (the Confederates) and the anti-slavery (the Union).

Enlightenment and Wars: 19th Century Europe and America

This has been a major and the most talked-about event in American history, which also sparked the interest of Rizal.

In fact, one of the inspirations for his Noli Me Tangere was an American novel that tackled slavery in 1852: Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin

Enlightenment and Wars: 19th Century Europe and America

Across Europe, a wave of Enlightenment was making an appearance. This led to various important epochs in world history—the Scientific and Industrial Revolution.

Because of the continued education of the people that are largely separatist from divine and godly sources, economic development sped up, giving birth to other economic systems (i.e. capitalism) that stayed up to this generation.

Knowledge was shared and information were spread throughout the world, even benefitting our own national hero.

Enlightenment and Wars: 19th Century Europe and America

In the Iberian Peninsula (Spain and Portugal), revolutions and demands against the Crown were the primary events during the 19th Century.

Because of the dissolution of the Cortes, to which the Philippines was also affected, Spain's colonies revolted, leaving three for her to rule on—Puerto Rico, Cuba, and the Philippines.

19th Century Philippines (Spanish Colonization)

Summary

The 19th Century world was a major source of inspiration of Rizal all his life. In the Philippines, social abuses and the unstable rule of the Spaniards led him to write and to fight for the country's freedom.

Our Asian neighbors suffered the same fate, only with different colonial powers taking advantage of their freedom and resources.

Even in the realm of the colonizers, changes and conflict cannot be avoided, making this century one of the most volatile and unstable in the course of world history.

Childhood Memories

Recall your childhood. What are your most vivid memories when you were young?

How different were you before as compared to the present?

The Rizal Family, at a glance

• Jose Rizal, or Pepe, is the seventh of the eleven children of Don Francisco Mercado and Dona Teodora

Alonso.

• His older brothers and sister are Saturnina, Paciano, Narcisa, Olimpia, Lucia, and Maria while younger than him were Concepcion, Josefa, Trinidad, and Soledad.

• The Rizal family resides in their hacienda in Calamba, Laguna.

Rizal's "Biodata"

• Rizal's whole name is Jose Protacio Rizal Mercado y Alonso Realonda

• "Jose" is his given name

• "Protacio" comes from the name of the saint on the Catholic calendar parallel to his birthday, St.

Protacio

• Rizal or "ricial" means "green field"

• "Mercado" is his father's surname

• "Alonso Realonda" is his mother's maiden and last names.

• Birthday: June 19, 1861

• He is baptized by Fr. Rufino Collantes on June 22, 1861 with Fr. Pedro Casanas as his godfather

Rizal's Parents and

Uncles

• Pepe's father, Don Francisco Mercado, was born on May 11, 1818.

• He studied Latin and Philosophy in College of San Jose in Manila.

• At the age of 30, he married Teodora Alonzo Realonda

• Both settled in Calamba, Laguna.

• Close ties with big people in government, finance, and the Church

• Because of the Calamba Hacienda Case, Don Francisco forbade Jose in using the surname "Mercado" and asked him to use "Rizal" instead

Dona Teodora Alonzo

Realonda

• A teacher, a firm believer of Jesus Christ, and a poet from Colegio de Santa Rosa

• Story of the Moth

Rizal's Uncles

• Pepe's uncles—Manuel, Jose, and Gregorio—teach him to exercise and swim, to do art like sculpting and painting, and to appreciate books and knowledge, respectively.

Rizal's Family

- The Rizal family has their ancestry tie to the Chinese and Japanese.
- Far back in their family tree, in Don Francisco's side, is Domingo Lam-co, a pureblooded Chinese.
- In the side of Rizal's mother, Dona Teodora Alonzo Realonda, is a pureblooded Japanese named Eugenio Ursua/Ochoa.
- The family owns a horse drawn carriage and a vast collection of books

Summary

- Jose Rizal belongs to a big family of eleven members with his parents, Don Francisco Mercado and Dona Teodora Alonzo Realonda
- Pepe' s family helps him develop his physical, mental, and spiritual selves all through out his childhood (and even during his adult years)
- Despite being a rich family with ties to Japanese and Chinese ancestors, the Rizal family is not immuned to the prejudices of the Spaniards, especially when Pepe openly criticizes state affairs and religious beliefs of the Philippines during his time.

RIZAL'S FIRST TEACHER: HIS MOTHER

- His first teacher is his mother, Dona Teodora, who teaches him the basic alphabet, reading, and some prayers.
- He learns to master the alphabet when he is only three years old.
- After mastering the alphabet, Dona Teodora encourages Pepe to write a few verses for leisure.

RIZAL'S EXPERIENCE

WITH PRIVATE TUTORS

- Rizal's Private Tutors
- Maestro Celestino
- Maestro Lucas Padua
- Leon Monroy
- The real challenge began

when he was in Binan

with his older brother,

Paciano.

RIZAL AND

MAESTRO

AQUINO

C RUZ

- When Paciano and Pepe went to Binan, Laguna to visit their aunt, the former had introduced the latter to Maestro Justiniano Aquino Cruz.

- The Maestro was also Paciano's teacher when he was young.

- Pepe stayed in Binan for a year and a half to train and to study under him

- Life in Biñan

- :00AM: study and mass

- :00AM-10:00AM: breakfast and school

- :00PM-5:00PM: classes

- :00PM onwards: evening prayers, dinner, study, bed

RIZAL AND MAESTRO JUSTINIANO

AQUINO CRUZ

- He was consistently on top of the class despite his dislike in the Maestro's way of teaching

- According to him, a student will thrive in an environment that is welcome to all for learning instead of being in a place of terror to make a mistake

- A year and a half later, Pepe came back to Calamba aboard the steamship

Talim. When his father, Don Francisco, asked him if he would return to

Binan, Pepe said no. This was because Maestro Justiniano Aquino Cruz taught him all that he knew, and that the teacher cannot teach anything else to Pepe.

AQUINO CRUZ

- This enraged Don Francisco and he demanded an audience with the Maestro.

- However, the Maestro himself had confirmed Pepe's statements that he cannot teach him anything else so Don Francisco had no choice but to allow Pepe not to go back to Binan

anymore

RIZAL'S CHILDHOOD

- Rizal was playful but smart, outspoken

but respectful, and disciplined but knows

when to have fun

- Enjoyed writing and painting
- He also plays pranks to his classmates
- Pepe did not take anything for granted.

He knows how to balance his life and his academic life.

SUMMARY

Pepe's first teachers are his mother and a few private tutors. In such a young age, he knows the alphabet and things that he would take to Binan and beyond.

In Binan, he studies under Maestro Justiniano Aquino Cruz and while enjoying the experience, he makes excellent performances. This is despite of the Maestro's cruel teaching methods. These combined experiences from his early teachers opened Rizal's eyes in the importance of education and the educational developments that he will soon think of.

Why Ateneo?

On June 10, 1872, Rizal takes the entrance exam at Escuela Pia, the former name of Ateneo Municipal

Don Francisco chooses Ateneo for its superior six-year bachelor of arts curriculum consisting of Spanish, Latin, Greek, and French languages, world geography, religion, geometry, trigonometry, physics, zoology, humanities, philosophy

Rizal's reason in wanting to go to Ateneo is the school's reputation in treating each student as equals

Why Ateneo?

One thing that hinders Rizal from entering as a freshman in Ateneo is his small built.

He is almost ready to quit Ateneo if not for Manuel Xerex Burgos who makes sure that Rizal shall be given an exception because of his very good academic record

Rizal manages to enroll under the name of "Jose Rizal" instead of "Jose Mercado". This is to draw attention away from him because of the land crisis that is happening back in their hometown, Calamba.

Rizal's First Year: The "Battle" of Rome and Carthage

This is the classroom set up in Ateneo—the two opposing empires are the participants in the Punic Wars, a series of battles between Rome and Carthage due to the former's expansion as the Holy Roman Empire.

The Ateneans group the class into these two groups, with all students starting as flag bearers.

Rizal's First Year: The "Battle" of Rome and Carthage

A student shall increase in rank for every correct answer.

Highest Rank is Emperor

Because of Rizal's superior intellect, he becomes an Emperor within just months

Rizal's First Year: The "Battle" of Rome and Carthage

Rizal's Second Year: Student Ills and Disappointments

Unstable residence

Strict landlord

Went back to Doña Pepay (now with four grandchildren)

Led to Rizal's lack of focus in school

At the end of his second year, he only receives one recognition and one medal in the Latin language

Rizal's Third Year: Times for Improvement

Rizal's Fourth Year: Correspondence with Fr. Francisco de Paula Sanchez

Fr. Francisco de Paula Sanchez

Trained Rizal in poetry

It is because of Fr. Sanchez's encouragement, intellectual, and emotional support that Rizal had managed to gain top marks in all of his subjects.

He also gains five medals of excellence in school activities

Rizal's Fifth Year: Bachiller en Artes

In school year 1876-1877, Rizal graduates from Ateneo with a Bachiller en Artes (literally "Bachelor of Arts", a high school diploma during the Spanish era)

His mentor, Fr. Francisco de Paula Sanchez, as well as Frs. Jacinto Febres and Jose Villalara, are also proud of the achievements of the young Rizal

Much later on, when Rizal is exiled in Dapitan, these Jesuit priests share in Rizal's sorrow and laments what happened to his life.

The Jesuits always have a vital role in Rizal's life even after his imminent death in 1896

Summary

Don Francisco and Pepe chose Ateneo to be the latter's school because of its curricula and depth in teaching.

Despite the hardships that Rizal had experienced, he stood victorious while not forgetting his studies and his family back in Calamba

When he had his Bachiller en Artes, he was always grateful to Fr. Francisco de Paula Sanchez and the rest of the Jesuits for molding him to the way he is.

Introduction

Guided by Rizal's budding nationalistic tendencies, he is never contented with the education he receives in the Philippines.

As a lover of knowledge now out to help the country, Rizal is advised by Paciano to go overseas to learn more, to build himself more, and to be ready for the independence of their country.

Top Secret Pact of Rizal and Paciano

If Rizal wants to change how education in the Philippines is, he needs to study how it is being done outside their colony.

Paciano urged him to go out of the country

In order to keep Rizal safe, Paciano hides his travel plans to their family.

Aside from Paciano, who gives him 356 pesos as pocket money, their uncle Antonio and some Jesuit priests in the Ateneo (who gives Rizal a recommendation letter to get him in a European university) knew all about his travel abroad.

He leaves the Philippines on May 3, 1882 sailing for France.

Top Secret Pact of Rizal and Paciano

In Barcelona: Meeting Fellow Filipinos

Upon reaching Barcelona on June 16, 1882, Rizal was awestruck with the culture and the surroundings of Europe

To him, Europe was the perfect example of how a territory must be run.

Added to Rizal's excitement was his reunion with his Atenean classmates in Barcelona. They threw a welcome party for him.

Amor Patrio (Love of Country)

Because of the immense liberalism in the territory, Rizal was inspired to write Amor Patrio (Love of Country) to be published in the Manila-based Diario de Manila.

According to Rizal, the loyalties of the Filipinos should not be in Spain but in our country, making it one of the first subversive writing that he had written in his career.

Excerpts from Amor Patrio

As children we love to play games which we abandon in our adolescent years. In our youth we work for an ideal, but later we become disillusioned and turn away from it in favor of something more positive and practical.

As parents we lose children to death and time wipes away our sorrow much like the widening sea makes the shore vanish from sight as the ship sails into the deep. In contrast, the love for country is never wiped away once it finds a place in the human heart, for it bears the divine seal which makes it eternal and indestructible

It has always been said that love is an extremely powerful force behind most noble activities. Well then, of all loves, the love of country has inspired the grandest, the most heroic and the most selfless of deeds

Alas, how many have suffered and died in your name, which others have taken in vain to free the fatherland from conquerors—from Jesus Christ who out of great love came to the world for the good of humanity and died for all in defense of the laws of his own beloved country, down to the unknown victims of modern revolutions!

How many victims of rancor, ambition or ignorance have breathed their last, blessing you and wishing every good fortune!

Excerpts from Amor Patrio

You whose ideals of the past are lost, you whose hearts are wounded and whose dreams have vanished one by one, you are like the trees of autumn without flowers and leaves, and wishing to love, you find nothing worthy of your affections: here is your native land; love her.

You who have lost father or mother or brother or spouse or child, or a beloved on whom you were building your dreams, and find within yourselves nothing but a vast and terrifying emptiness: here is your own country, love her as she deserves

It is our duty to tread the hard but peaceful and productive paths of science which lead to progress and ultimately to the union which Jesus Christ wished and prayed for on the night of his passion.

In Madrid: Rizal as a Nationalist-Reformer

Rizal leaves Barcelona on November 3, 1882 to enroll in the medicine and philosophy programs of the Universidad Central de Madrid.

He graduated with a Licenciado en Medicina in June of 1884 and gets his Licenciado en Filosofía y Letras in June of 1885

Rizal also attends classes from various universities

Painting and sculpture at the Academia de San Fernando

French, English, and German languages at the Madrid Ateneo

Shooting and fencing at the schools of Sanz and Carbonell.

He finishes all those courses too before 1884

In Madrid: Rizal as a Nationalist-Reformer

In Madrid: Rizal as a Nationalist-Reformer

In Paris: Dr. Louis de Wecker

In 1885, Rizal leaves Madrid to go to Paris, France to train under the famous ophthalmologist, Dr. Louis de Wecker.

He decides to take ophthalmology as his specialization to cure the ailing eyesight of his mother

Dr. de Wecker gladly accepts Rizal in his clinic as an assistant.

By February of 1886, he said his goodbyes to Dr. de Wecker in order to train under Dr. Otto Becker in Heidelberg, Germany.

A Las Flores de Heidelberg (The Flowers of Heidelberg)

This was one of Rizal's poems about nature, as he was captivated by the beautiful and colorful flowers in Heidelberg that he sees while working

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

Go to my native land, go, foreign flowers,
Sown by the traveler on his way,
And there, beneath its azure sky,
Where all my afflictions lie;
There from the weary pilgrim say
What faith is his in that land of ours!

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

Go there and tell how when the dawn, Her early light diffusing, Your petals first flung open wide; His steps beside chill Neckar drawn, You see him silent by your side

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

Upon its Spring perennial musing,
Say how when morning's light,
All your fragrance stealing,
Whispers to you as in mirth,
Playful songs of Love's delight,
He, too, murmurs his love's feeling
In the tongue he learned at birth.

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

That when the sun of Koenigstul's height
Pours out its golden flood,
And with its slowly warming light
Gives life to vale and grove and wood,
He greets that sun, here only apraising,
Which in his native land is at its zenith blazing.

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

And tell there of that day he stood,
Near to a ruin'd castle gray,
By Neckar's banks, or shady wood,
And pluck'd you beside the way

A Las Flores de Heidelberg

Tell, too, the tale to you addressed,
And how with tender care,
Your bending leaves he press'd
Twist pages of some volume rare.

Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Ferdinand Blumentritt

Rizal met friends in the cities of Leipzig and Dresden
One of them is Fredrich Ratzel, a German historian whom he had several conversations with Together with Hans Meyer, Ratzel writes a book about the Philippines and had asked Rizal to read it
Rizal also has correspondences with Feodor Jagor and Hans Virchow, anthropologists who also studied the Philippines.
Because of their fascination on the Philippines, Rizal establishes Philippine Studies together with them and his lifelong friend, Ferdinand Blumentritt.

Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Ferdinand Blumentritt

Rizal grows very close to the Austrian Dr. Ferdinand Blumentritt
Both of them being masters of languages and has intense love for anything Filipino

Even in times of his exile, trial, and imminent execution, Rizal makes it to a point that he informs Blumentritt about his condition.

Rizal in Germany

Rizal is quick to master the German language as evident in his translations of Schiller's "William Tell" and Hans Christian Andersen's "Fairy Tales" in Tagalog for his nephews and nieces back in the Philippines.

His exposure in anthropology and the birth of Philippine Studies led to his deeper love of country

Berlin: The Early Beginnings of Noli Me Tangere

After his experiences in Leipzig and Dresden, he proceeds to stay in Berlin to finish the writing and publication of Noli Me Tangere

Due to hardships in financial matters, Rizal needs the help of Maximo Viola, one of the people who visits him in the city

Viola sees Rizal in almost a daze, not eating, and slowly getting poorer because of the slow influx of money despite his profession

Berlin: The Early Beginnings of Noli Me Tangere

Viola shells out a bit of his money to aid Rizal's publication dream

Notwithstanding the problems that almost led to Noli's failure to be published, the first copies are printed out in Berlin

It quickly gained readers all across Europe, and even in the Philippines through the black market.

Summary

Rizal is trained under various ophthalmologists to gain more experience in order to cure Dona Teodora's eyes.

While in Germany, Rizal meets like-minded people whom he had corresponded with, especially Dr. Ferdinand Blumentritt who is a very close family friend and confidante. This expanded Rizal's network and friendship ties with people whom he had respected and admired.

Even though he experiences hardships abroad, Rizal never abandons his dream to publish a novel. Together with Maximo Viola, they both work hard for Noli Me Tangere to become a reality

Introduction to the "Rizal Law"

Topic 1 of The Life and Works of Jose Rizal

Learning Outcomes:

To know the historical background on why RA 1425 was passed

To identify the features of the Rizal Law

To realize the importance of how the law was passed and has undergone a difficult process.

To identify how certain personalities have contributed to Rizal law

Motivational Activity

Who is Jose Rizal?

Motivational Activity

Why study Rizal's life and works?

The Legislation of Rizal Law: An Arduous Path

After having a short introduction about Rizal and the reasons why we must study his life and works, we must now learn that the path towards the legislation of a bill mandating educational institutions to teach the life and works of Rizal traversed a difficult path.

But why should this be the case?

Republic Act No. 1425

A law mandating the inclusion of the life, works and writings of Dr. Jose Rizal in the curricula of all public and private educational institutions, particularly the Noli Me Tangere and El Filibusterismo.

This law was primarily sponsored by the anti-colonial Senator Claro Mayo Recto and supported by the former president of the Japanese puppet government, and during that time a senator and chairperson of the Senate Committee on Education, Jose P. Laurel.

Senate Bill 438

Before the legislation of the Rizal Law, Senator Claro M. Recto submitted to the Senate Committee on Education the Senate Bill 438, entitled: "an Act to Include in the Curricula of All Public and Private Schools, Colleges and Universities courses on the Life, Works, and Writings of JOSE RIZAL, particularly his novels NOLI ME TANGERE and EL FILIBUSTERISMO, Authorizing the Printing and Distribution Thereof, and for Other Purposes."

This was afterwards introduced and supported by Senator Jose P. Laurel in his committee.

April 3, 1956 – submission of the bill

April 17, 1956 – presentation and sponsorship of the bill

House Bill No. 5561

The counterpart bill of Senate Bill 438

Submitted by Cong. Jacobo Z. Gonzales

The Debate on the Rizal Law

At first both the Rizal bills had promoted the reading and study of the unexpurgated versions of Noli and Fili.

The bills both met contention from the Catholic Church.

In the Senate, the Senate Bill 438 was opposed by Senators Mariano Jesus Cuenco, Francisco "Soc" Rodrigo and Decoroso Rosales.

Arguments against the Rizal Bill

Infringement of religious freedom

Contrary to the principles of the Catholic Church

The issue focused on the exclusivity of reading and studying the Noli and Fili

What does this opposition imply about the power of the Catholic Church in the Philippines?

The passing of the law

Substitute bills were introduced both in the Senate and in the House

May 12, 1956: approval of the Senate

May 14, 1956: approval of the House of Representatives

The approved versions included all the writings and works of Rizal, removing the exclusivity of the Noli and Fili.

It still mandated the reading and study of unexpurgated versions of all of Rizal's writings and works.

Jose P. Laurel's argument regarding the need to read and study the unexpurgated versions of Rizal

We must study the Noli and Fili: "They must be taken to heart, for in their pages we see ourselves as a mirror, our defects as well as our strengths, our virtues as well as our vices. Only then would we become conscious as a people, and so learn to prepare ourselves for painful sacrifices that ultimately lead to self-reliance, self-respect and freedom."

Why unexpurgated? – it would defeat the purpose of reading and studying Rizal.

Signing of the bill into law

June 12, 1956: The law was signed by President Ramon Magsaysay

Why must we study Rizal?

Rationale of the Rizal Law:

- 1) To rededicate the lives of the youth to the ideals of freedom and nationalism, for which our heroes lived and died
- 2) To play tribute to our national hero for devoting his life and works for shaping the Filipino character
- 3) To gain an inspiring source of patriotism thru the study of Rizal's life, works and writings.

Why must we study Rizal?

According to the former Board on National Education:

- 1) To recognize the relevance of Rizal's ideals, thoughts, teaching, and life values to present conditions in the community
- 2) To apply Rizal's ideas in the solution of day-to-day situations and problems in contemporary life
- 3) To develop an understanding and appreciation of the qualities, behavior and character of Rizal
- 4) To foster the development of moral character, personal discipline, citizenship and vocational efficiency among the Filipino youth.

How do we learn patriotism and nationalism from Rizal's literature?

Patriotism vs. Nationalism, is there a difference?

Both of them imply a sense of national pride but there is a caveat in terms of the political correctness of the terms.

How do we learn patriotism and nationalism from Rizal's literature?

Internationalization vs. Nationalism, where did Rizal stand?

"Rizal positioned himself between the "inside" and the "outside." – Mojares (2013)

How do we learn patriotism and nationalism from Rizal's literature?

Rizal both identified the need to construct a national identity and the need to engage with external power or to introduce the Filipino identity to the world.

Planned to submit an anthology of essays to the Circulo-Hispano Filipino

Helping Paciano to translate the Noli in Filipino

Translation of Friedrich Schiller's William Tell and some fairy tales of Hans Christian Andersen

Conclusion:

"Thus, the importance of the study of Rizal's life, works and writings is to instill in ourselves the idea and ideals of Jose Rizal, and to develop a deeper awareness and understanding of its relevance so that in the long run, we may be able to apply them in our daily lives and become an active participant in nation-building." – Neri and Sion (2019)

Slide 5

Imagine a punk or a conyo (coño) Rizal.

Just like all of us, Rizal was a man of his time.

Just like all of us the global and local events that happened in his century affected him and his works greatly.

Main features of the 19th century

The birth of the modern life

The birth of many nation-states around the world

The three revolutions: Industrial Revolution, French Revolution and American Revolution

The Three Revolutions

Industrial Revolution (1760-1840)

The global economic shift from simple farming to large-scale machine manufacturing that started in England, Great Britain. Essentially a revolution in the economic sphere that transpired to the daily lives of the people.

The Three Revolutions

American Revolution (1775-1783)

A political revolution for the independence of the North American colonies of the Great Britain, which would become the United States of America.

Slogan: "No taxation without representation."

The Three Revolutions

French Revolution (1789-1799)

A political and social revolution that overthrew the Bourbon Dynasty of France.

Slogan: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity"

Question:

What do you think are the ideals of the American and French Revolution that we can still see today in our country? Identify at least one and explain.

Important domestic events during the 19th century

End of the Galleon Trade

The trade between Acapulco and Manila that started in 1565.

The trade closed the ports of Manila from other countries and gave exclusive access to its ports to Spain.

In 1810, Spain would see the fall of some of its Latin American colonies in the Mexican War of Independence.

In 1815, the Galleon trade would formally end.

Important domestic events during the 19th century

Opening of Manila to world commerce

In 1834, due to the end of the Galleon Trade and the losses of the Real Compañía de Filipinas – the state-backed chartered commercial enterprise created by the royal decree of King Carlos III of Spain. The said company was created supposedly to compete with the Galleon Trade and bring in bigger wealth to Spain.

Important domestic events during the 19th century

Merchants and traders' leadership in finance

Due to the opening of Manila to global trade, merchants and traders; became the leaders in finance. These traders were largely Spanish mestizos and Chinese.

Rizal's partial Chinese roots

Domingo Lam-co

According to the American historian Austin Craig, the genealogy of Francisco Mercado, Jose Rizal's father is traceable to Domingo Lam-co, a Chinese merchant from Fujian, China. Lam-co was Rizal's great-great-grandfather.

Impacts of the Industrial Revolution

- The Philippines was opened for world commerce
- Foreigners were engaged in manufacturing and agriculture
- The Philippine economy became dynamic and balanced
- There was rise of new influential and wealthy Filipino middle class
- People were encouraged to participate in trade

6. Migration and increase in population were encouraged.

Opening of the Suez Canal

Another specific event which the Industrial Revolution contributed, and became impactful to the Philippines was the opening of the Suez Canal that made traveling to Europe from the Philippines more accessible.

The construction of the said canal was led by Ferdinand de Lesseps

The canal was formally opened on November 17, 1860.

The Philippine social system during the time of Rizal

The Hacienda System

The prosperity that trade and commerce had brought pushed more for the planting of cash crops, and later on, introduction of the hacienda system

Hacienda system is a land-renting system between the "haciendero," "inquilino" and the "kasama."

Social stratification of the Philippines during the time of Rizal

Question:

Do you find the class division in the Philippines during the Spanish period fair? Explain your answer.

The ilustrados

A product of the rise of the Spanish and Chinese mestizos in the economy.

The educated middle-class capable of sending their children abroad for education.

Sought to increase their influence but looked-down by the inner circle of Spanish "peninsulares."

Educational system during the time of Rizal

UST was the only university offering a diversity courses at the end of the 19th century.

The Education Decree of 1863 required each town to construct at least one school for boys and one for girls, and mandated the compulsory teaching of the Spanish language to Filipinos.

The impact of the French and American revolutions

The events of the French and American revolutions spread throughout the world.

These political and social revolutions inspired the call for liberty and independence.

These revolutions inspired some of the subsequent revolutions around the world, and even in the Philippines.

Cadiz Constitution of 1812

A constitution made after the revolt of Rafael del Riego in Spain, and promoted the concept of the nation-state and representation of the colonies in the Spanish Cortes.

Ventura delos Reyes was the Philippine representative to the Spanish Cortes during this time and was also among its signatories.

The constitution was later on declared invalid by King Ferdinand VII upon the defeat of the Spanish liberals by the French army.

Song analysis

Listen to the song "Batang-Bata Ka Pa."

Explain the message of the song.

What are some of the things during your childhood that you have remembered upon listening to the song?

Rizal before becoming the mature hero that he would become.

What were the important events in Rizal's childhood that have influenced his mature life?

Is the saying – "Heroes were born not made" – real?

The birth of Dr. Jose Rizal

Dr. Jose Protacio Rizal Mercado y Alonso Realonda was born on June 19, 1861. He was born in Calamba, Laguna.

According to his personal accounts, it has happened sometime between eleven o'clock in the evening and midnight.

Rizal's mother find hard to give birth to him due to his big head, also according to Rizal.

Fr. Rufino Collantes baptized him and his "ninong" was Fr. Pedro Casañas, a close family friend.

Trivia regarding Rizal's full name

Jose Protacio was the actual given name of Dr. Jose Rizal. He was named after two saints: St. Joseph (father of Christ) and St. Protasius (feast day – June 19)

The Rizal and Realonda were secondary surnames to the original parental surnames of Dr. Rizal, which were Mercado and Alonso. It was done in accordance with the decree of Gov. Gen. Narciso Claveria in 1849.

The Realonda was added to honor an aunt or a godmother within their circle.

Rizal comes from "ricial" which means "evergreen fields"

The Rizal Family

Excerpted from Neri & Sion (2019)

The Rizal Family

Jose Rizal was born in a big family. They were 11 siblings in total, and Jose was the 7th.

Their complete list are:

Saturnina (1850-1913)

Paciano (1851-1930)

Narcisa (1852-1939)

Olympia (1855-1887)

Lucia (1857-1919)

Maria (1859-1945)

Jose Rizal (1861-1896)

Concepcion (1862-1865) – first sorrow of Rizal during childhood; Fr. Leoncio Lopez would help Rizal understand the philosophy of life

Josefa (1865-1945)

Trinidad (1868-1951)

Soledad (1870-1929)

(Nery & Sion, 2019)

Question:

What is your family's background that parallels with our late national hero's? How did you feel upon learning them?

Preparations before formal education

1865-1867: Rizal's preparation for formal education was under the supervision of his mother, a poet.

Leon Monroy, Rizal's private tutor in Latin.

Uncle Manuel Alberto, taught him swimming, fencing, wrestling and other sports

Uncle Jose Alberto, taught him to love and admire nature

Uncle Gregorio Alonso, taught him love of education, value of hard work, to think for himself and to observe his surroundings carefully

Rizal's other private tutors: Maestro Celestino and Lucas Padua

The Story of the Moth and the Flame

During the time when Jose was being taught to read by his mother, she told her the story of a moth and its mother. (El cuento de la polilla y la llama; El Amigo de los Niños)

The story would leave a profound mark on Rizal's adulthood. In his "Memoirs of a Student in Manila" he would write: "I do not know if I answered her, but I remember that the story made a profound impression on me... I thought that the light was beautiful, and that it was worth dying for."

Question:

What do you think is the meaning of Rizal's accounts of the "Story of the Moth and the Flame?"

The Contended Authorship of "Sa Aking mga Kabata"

For quite a long time, historians and scholars of other disciplines would believe that Jose wrote the poem "Sa Aking Mga Kabata" or "Our Mother Tongue" or "To My Fellow Children" or "To My Childhood Companions" (translation of Nick Joaquin) during his childhood.

But other historians are doubtful of Rizal's authorship of this poem, as he used in this poem the term "kalayaan," which would only become popular during his adult life (21 years old).

Others think that Jose could have just revised the poem during his mature life.

Question:

What is your opinion regarding Rizal's authorship of "Sa Aking Mga Kabata?" Do you think it was really written by the young Rizal?

Early Childhood and Education in Biñan, Laguna

After the death of Leon Monroy, Jose's parents would decide to enroll him to a private school in Biñan, under the teaching and supervision of Maestro Justiniano Aquino y Cruz.

Paciano would accompany Jose to the school, whose teacher was formerly his.

Early Childhood and Education in Biñan, Laguna

Rigorous schedule:

4: 00AM: study and mass

6: 00AM-10:00AM: breakfast and school

2: 00PM-5:00PM: classes

6: 00PM onwards: evening prayers, dinner, study, bed

(excerpted from Prof. Franz Jude Abelgas' PPT presentation)

Early Childhood and Education in Biñan, Laguna

"He used a cane to discipline us. I do not remember a single day when I was not beaten or given a few lashes on my hands."

The young Pepe would grow a distaste over the pedagogy of Maestro Aquino y Cruz.

After a year and a half, the young Pepe would come back to his hometown of Calamba because Maestro Aquino y Cruz had nothing else to teach him.

Rizal was consistently on top of his class.

Question:

Do you think Rizal's opinion regarding Maestro Aquino y Cruz's pedagogy is just? Elaborate.

Overview of Rizal's Education

Higher Education:

Universidad de Santo Tomas (UST) – 1877-1882; first course: Filosofia y Letras; 1878-1879: shifted to medicine, but did not finish

Universidad Central de Madrid – 1882-1885; enrolled and finished both Licentiate in Medicine and Licentiate in Philosophy and Letters; he would pursue Doctor of Medicine (post-graduate degree), but would not finish due to his failure to present his thesis and pay the required fees.

"Nagpakasipag ako sa books, paps, tapos konteng ea."

Events Preceding Rizal's Enrollment in Ateneo Municipal de Manila

Execution of Padre Mariano Gomez, Jose Burgos and Jacinto Zamora (GOMBURZA) on February 17, 1872 in Bagumbayan (current Luneta).

Arrest of Doña Teodora Alonso due to accusations of attempting to poison her brother's (Jose Alberto) wife.

Entrance Exam at Colegio de San Juan de Letran for Ateneo Municipal de Manila

June 10, 1872: Paciano accompanied Pepe to take his examination at Colegio de San Juan de Letran, not Ateneo Municipal, because all college entrance exams were administered by the Dominican Order during that time.

Don Francisco Mercado's first choice for Rizal was Letran, but he would later decide to choose Ateneo.

Ateneo Municipal de Manila

Original location: Arzobispo cor. Anda St., Intramuros, Manila

Under the administration of the Jesuits

A well-known boy's school during the time of Rizal

Ateneo Municipal de Manila

Formerly known as Escuela Pia

Supreme six-year bachelor of arts curriculum (but according to Ateneo's records it was only five years during Rizal's time in the Ateneo Municipal)

Had a reputation for fairly treating their students

Rizal's Enrollment

Finally, Don Francisco decided to enroll Pepe to the Ateneo Municipal de Manila. He would also be accompanied by Paciano in his enrollment in June 1872.

Jose Rizal would be rejected by Fr. Magin Ferrando due to his late enrollment and physique (sickly and undersized for an 11-year-old).

Manuel Xerex/Xerez Burgos, nephew of Padre Burgos, helped in admission to Ateneo.

Rizal's Enrollment

Rizal would use the surname Rizal instead of Mercado to keep him away from the radars of the authorities.

Paciano, who was known to the authorities as a confidant of Padre Burgos, was known by his surname Mercado.

August 8, 1887 – Rizal would be coming back to the Philippines from his first sojourn in Europe

Dangers of returning home due to the publication of Noli Me Tangere

Rizal's reason for coming back:

To operate on his mother's eyes

To serve the people

To check the impact of the Noli

To know why Leonor remained silent

CALAMBA HACIENDA CASE

The lands of Batangas and Laguna were largely under the control of the Dominican friars

1887 – Rizal drafted a petition contesting the ownership of Dominican lands in Calamba; This is in response to the inquiry of the then Governor-General Emilio Terrero

1888 – Tenants would refuse to pay their rents to the Dominicans

CALAMBA HACIENDA CASE

A year later, the Dominicans would bring the case to the Justice of Peace in Calamba.

The Dominicans would lose the case, according to some stories due to Paciano's bribery.

The Dominicans appealed to the Provincial Court of Santa Cruz. They would also eventually win in the Real Audiencia and Spanish Supreme Court.

RIZAL'S SECOND SOJOURN

Heeding the advice of Governor-General Emilio Terrero and due to the security of his family, Jose Rizal would leave the country February 3, 1888.

On 1891, Governor-General Valeriano Wyler would order the eviction of the tenants of Calamba. The tenants would come back, and this would trigger their deportation of Paciano Rizal and some brothers-in-law of Jose Rizal
